The an--nouncement that the Government of Peking and that several large British ship-building great number of crackers. firms will shortly be employed in executing Chinese orders will be rather surprising to those who know what the present condition of the Imperial Treasury at Peking. is like. Ironclads cost money, as even the British Government knows full well, and the wealthiest of nations have to think twice tending the acquisition of a navy. China is not rich, and cannot indulge in such luxury interest, but a matter of surprise to some of without feeling much straitened for money It has been with the utmost possible difficulty that she has raised funds for the prosecution of-the-war-with-the-Ameer of-Kashgar. The sinews of war have, indeed, only been obtained by extraordinary devices, such as the sale to wealthy, natives of posthumous honours for their deceased relatives and titles for the living. Such methods as these cannot be resorted to very often, nor yet is it advisable—as has been done recently in the province of Fohkien to relieve the sufferers from the late inundation—to levy forced contributions on the rich morcantile community. It may answer very well, once in a way, to make these forced contributions, for the merchants and traders dare not attempt to offer open opposition to his behalf for the consideration of the Full the mandate of the Dragon Throne, but their murmuring is deep if not loud, and some, perhaps, needlessly. But I had had no opthe loyalty of the "squeezed" people is portunity of seeing the information and deposit not improved by the arbitrary steps taken tions likely to arise in a trial for an attempt to to make them contribute to the cost of a escape from gaol—the law of which, as well war in which they have not the slightest interest or concern.
